

Journal of Cosmere Science

Volume 1

---

Jesse McDonald

745 Paani Street, Unit A, Honolulu, HI · (208)553-4263 · jamcdonald120@gmail.com

February 7, 2023

Brandon Sanderson
Prime Researcher
Dragonsteel Entertainment
Pleasant Grove, UT 84062

Dear Dr. Sanderson,

Over the past 8 months I have been working on an academic paper summarizing everything known about the 3 metallic arts in the Cosmere. This paper is written as though the Cosmere is a real place that you have visited, and your books are merely recountings of the things you have seen. At its inception, I had intended to also create an online “Academic” Journal for other people too also submit papers to for peer review and publication. Regrettably such a platform is currently out of my resource set, but I have not given up hope for it, and still intend to get it up and running one day (possibly a good project for Ben).

In any case I wrote this paper in anticipation of The Lost Metal as a refresher. I nearly finished it in time too, and I published an early copy on Reddit. But then TLM happened, and we all know some revisions had to happen now don’t we. I have spent the time since then finishing up the Citations, and polishing the format, oh and adding details from Tress. I think it is finally finished.

Unfortunately I have not been able to get anyone to Peer edit it, but I believe all of my facts are cited, and my speculations reasonable. However, there may be some incorrect assumptions I am making.

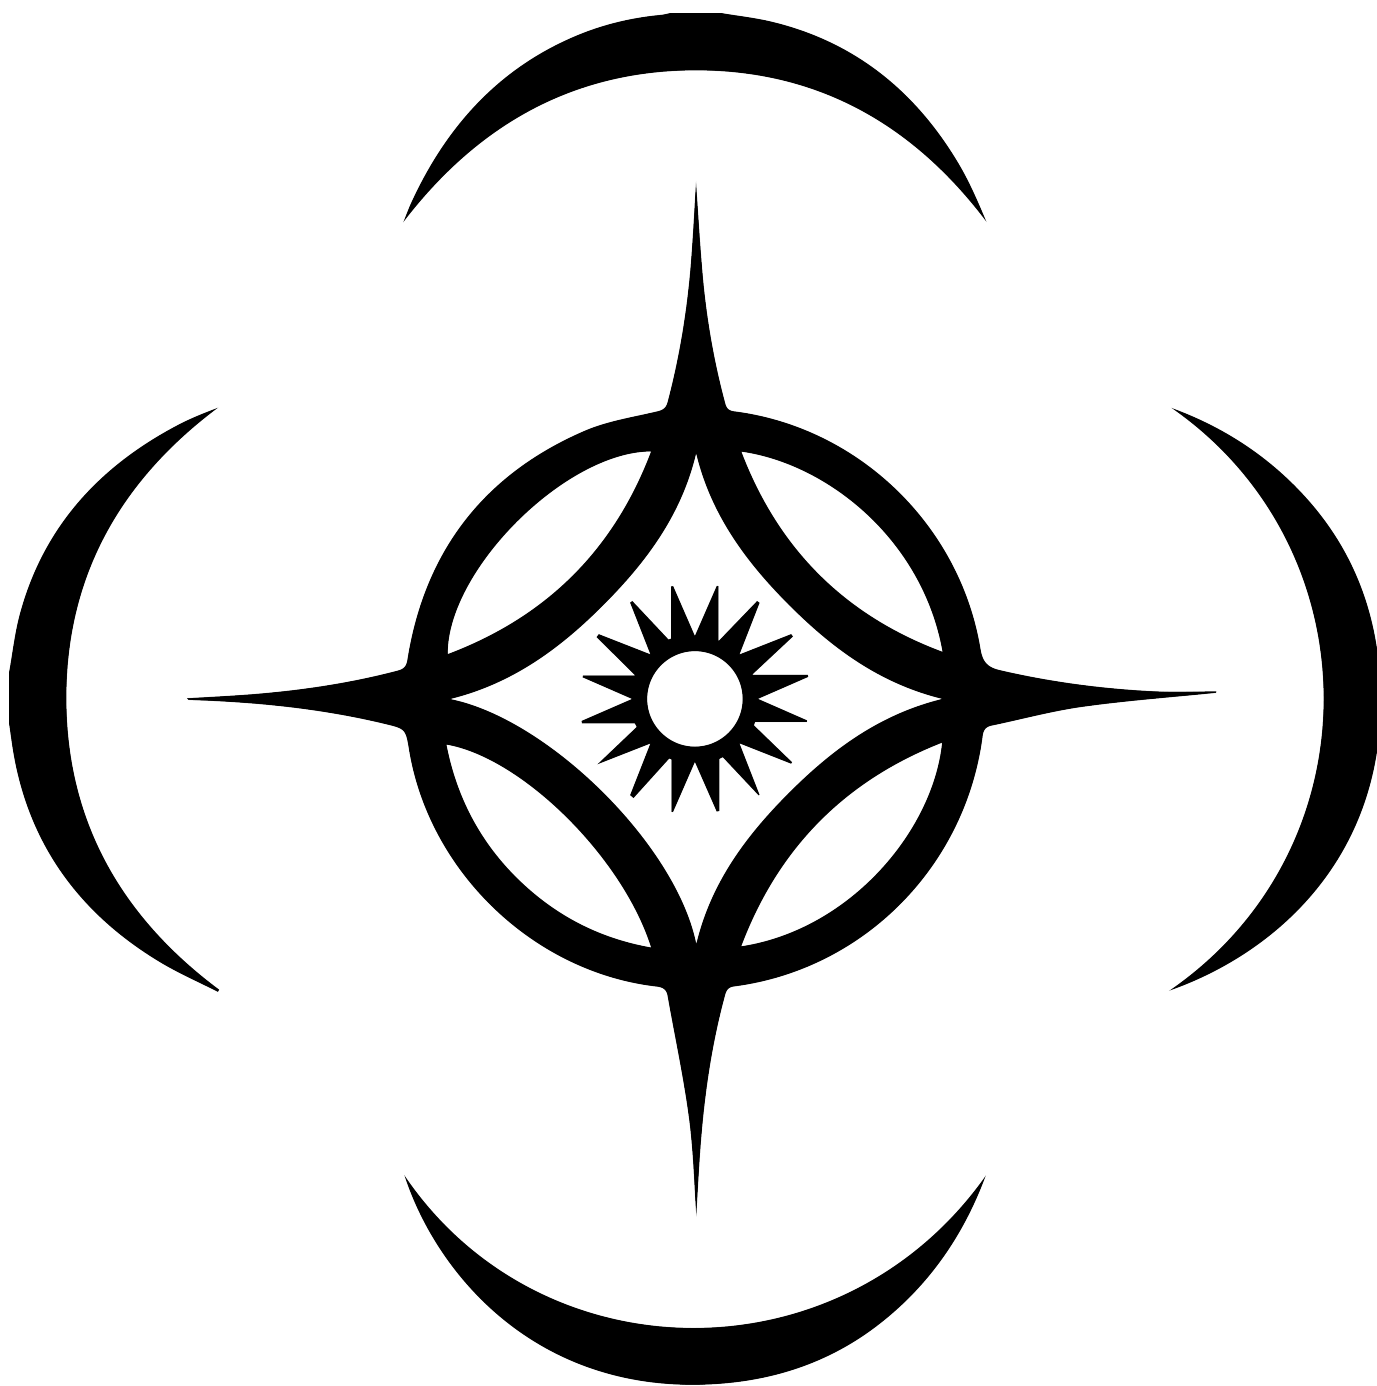

I do hope you and your team enjoy this work, and would greatly appreciate (but do not expect) you to review it for accuracy. Use it however you wish.

Say hi to Hoid and Kriss for me next time you see them.

Best Wishes,

Jesse McDonald
Copperkeep

Journal of Cosmere Science

Volume 1

